Dedicated to everyone who supports and believes in me. And a special thanks to Phil Tyrrell for being my first aid during my hard university final year.

Human sexuality is the way people experience and express themselves sexually, what makes us unique, the unlimitedly complex and diverse ways that we seek to satisfy our sexual desires. According to Professor Anil Aggrawal in Forensic and Medico-legal Aspects of Sexual Crimes and Unusual Sexual Practices, there are 547 different paraphilias which he noted that "like allergies, sexual arousal may occur from anything" Paraphilias are known as abnormal sexual behaviours or impulses characterized by intense and recurring sexual fantasies or urges.

Gabriel García Márquez, Colombian novelist, mentions that "we all have three lives: a public life, a private life and a secret life", of which the latter, paradoxically and agree with Dr Kate Lister, is the most honest, and at the same time forced to be secret due to the social system that we have imposed, which makes our secret life incompatible with the public and private. To control this secret part of ourselves, we turned sex into a moral issue, developing complex social structures to regulate our urges, turning sex into a taboo topic.

This book is my attempt to break the label of sexuality as a taboo topic and give visibility to that secret life using the term forniphilia. Forniphilia is a kind of paraphilia, also named as human furniture is a form of harsh bondage and sexual objectification in which a person's body is incorporated into a piece of furniture and expected to stay immobile for an indefinite time.

Forniphilia: the art of human furniture forni- f. Old French furnir f.

Roman, fornire; to furnish -philia f.
Greek philos; love of, fondness for word-forming element meaning "friendship, fondness, tendency toward," and in recent use "abnormal attraction to," from Greek philia "affection," from philos "loving," which is of uncertain origin. Related: -philic.

-philia

Furniture

the movable articles that are used to make a room or building suitable for living or working in, such as tables, chairs, or desks.

The term was originally coined by Jeff Gord. Forniphilia, also known as human furniture is a form of bondage and sexual objectification in which a person's body is incorporated into a piece of furniture. It is an extreme form of bondage because the subject usually is tightly bound and expected to stay immobile for a prolonged period of time. However, also can be performed very simply without any ties or restraints.
